FIVE

Days Exposure to the Elements

Without Food

During a Portion of That Time

Was the Distressing Condition of the Ship Webfoot.

Six Schooners Passed by Without Offering any Assistance to the Vessel in Distress.

Astoria, Ore., Nov. 24.—With three men of her crew missing and probably drowned, with her decks awash and the surviving members of her crew high exhausted from five days exposure to the elements, the old American barkentine Webfoot, water logged and dismantled has been towed into port here. Captain Lewis reports that while his vessel rolled in the heavy sea in the mouth of the Columbia river yesterday, threatening every movement to go to the bottom three steam schooners bound south and three bound north passed him yet none offered him assistance. The appearance of the San Francisco liner George W. Elder saved their lives. For five days the crew of the barkentine was huddled on the top of the cabin with no protection whatever from the gale. Excepting a few raw potatoes the men had nothing to eat and only such water as could be secured by catching rain in their oil skin hats. Captain Lewis states that he could not possibly have survived two days longer.

The Webfoot sailed from Coos Bay for San Francisco on October 14. The vessel is a wreck.

SERVED WARRANT FOR THE ARREST.

Of the President of Moulders Union on Charge of Abetting Destruction of Property.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 24.—Detective Callaghan arrived here from Cincinnati today to take President J. E. Valentine, of the International Moulders Union back to that city, on the charge of "aiding and abetting in the malicious destruction of property."

Mr. Valentine occupied his room at the American House last night and was not kept under surveillance by the local police. The Cincinnati detective called upon Valentine after arriving in the city and read the warrant for his arrest.

Valentine stated that he was ready to start for Cincinnati at once. The detective did not attempt to detain Valentine in any way and later left the hotel. Detective Callaghan and Mr. Valentine left for Cincinnati over the Big Four road shortly after noon.

STATE

Interested in the Contest

With Indians

Who Line Up at Columbus Today

While the Nation Will Watch West Point and Annapolis in the Scrimmage.

Thanksgiving Day Doesn't Promise the Usual Big Program in Which Athletes of the Big Colleges Usually Complete.

The eyes of the foot ball world are turned today to but two important games of state and national interest. Thanksgiving day has heretofore been set aside for the final settling of old scores but this year the climax has come in time to clean up everything in order that the home gatherings might be more complete. Yale and Harvard have settled their annual dispute in favor of the Tigers, and Michigan has wound up the season without a defeat.

The grapple today of national interest is between West Point and Annapolis, the military schools of the country, while in Ohio, the Carlisle Indians will take on the State University. Enthusiasm is rampant both at home and abroad, and the reports of the weather are favorable wherever special interest is confined.

Pennsylvania Will Meet Cornell. Philadelphia, Nov. 24.—The university of Pennsylvania and Cornell football eleven will meet this afternoon on Franklin field in their annual contest. Pennsylvania will enter the game with a clean record of victory for the season while Cornell's eleven has been a disappointment. Notwithstanding this fact, however, Coach Warner is hopeful to the point of confidence in the outcome of the contest. Ideal Weather for Nebraska Game. Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 24.—Perfect weather greeted the people of Lincoln today and ideal conditions for the annual football struggle between the universities of Nebraska and Illinois prevailed.

Weather too Warm for Missouri Game. Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 24.—Before the annual contest between Kansas and Missouri universities was called this afternoon the betting was decidedly in favor of Kansas. Kansas was said to have the strongest team that had ever represented the university of that state. The weather was not quite cold enough to suit the enthusiasts, but conditions otherwise were favorable.

Wisconsin and Chicago Clash. Chicago, Nov. 24.—The keen rivalry between the eleven of Wisconsin and Chicago universities more than compensated for the absence of the championship element today in the meeting of the two teams on Marshall field. The contestants were more evenly matched than any that have played in Chicago this fall. In weight the advantage is with Wisconsin, while Chicago is considered by followers of the game to have had the better training. Coach Stagg declared before the game that Chicago would win by a small score. Coach Curtis said that Wisconsin would fight hard and expected to win.

MILLS

And Furnaces Are Assured

Plenty of Work

For the Winter Season Now at Hand

Is the Encouraging Word Which Is Now Given Out.

By Those in Possession of Information Regarding the Requirements of the Iron Business.

New York, Nov. 24.—Ample employment for the furnaces and mills is now, says the iron Age, practically assured for the winter which is usually faced by the industry with doubts. The buying movement has spread in all directions and has assumed somewhat surprising proportions. Consumers and manufacturers in the general trades are providing for replacing their depleted stocks, this being reflected particularly in the raw materials like pig iron and in the finished goods like wire, bars, tubs, sheets and cast iron pipe. The railroads, absence of whose orders was so keenly felt during the past year, are purchasing generally, in many cases attempting to take care of their requirements for the whole of the coming year. The only exception is for rails on which prices have not yet been fixed. The locomotive tire trade continues demoralized by a struggle among the mills which are cutting prices down to 2½ cents to 3½ cents.

The purchasing of steel cars by the railroads is a conspicuous feature of the market, which is reflected by large orders for plates and shapes. During the past few days orders for 4,000 steel cars have been placed, and 15,000 cars are now under negotiation. A large number of railroads have purchased bridge material during the past week. The market for foundry irons has been quite active, the pipe interests being conspicuous buyers. Eastern makers have advanced their prices further and the southern makers are somewhat stiffer.

A report comes from Philadelphia to the effect that an interest has purchased five thousand tons of warrants in Great Britain which may be available for export sales of finished castings. Nothing has yet been decided in regard to steel rails for next year. There have been conferences which indicate a satisfactory adjustment of percentages. It is estimated that the demand for 1905 will call for a very good aggregate of rails.

Among the recent rail orders taken for foreign delivery is a lot of five thousand tons for the Great Northern of England. The scrap iron markets have been in an excited condition lately, the moderate stock being closely held.

DRIVEN TO DESPERATION

By Arrest of His Wife a Passenger Jumped Overboard.

New York, Nov. 24.—Driven to desperation by the plight of his wife who, he had told his fellow passengers, is under arrest at Hamburg, charged with child murder, Dernetel Boni, a steerage passenger, jumped overboard from the steamer Graf Waldersee and was drowned.

The suicide was reported when the steamer arrived here today from Hamburg. The officers of the Graf Waldersee said that Boni appeared greatly distressed when he boarded the steamer and drank heavily. Last Tuesday he jumped overboard and although the steamer was put about and a boat sent in search of the man, he was not found. Boni was an Austrian about thirty-six years old.

LOWEST POINT

Ever Reached in Some of the Districts

In the United Kingdom Was Recorded by the Thermometer Last Night.

London, Nov. 24.—The temperature in some districts of the United Kingdom during the night, although only 25 degrees below freezing point was the lowest ever recorded here. The district is generally and the local authorities are organizing relief works. The interruption of road communications in the country continues and the isolated villages are suffering severely. In a few instances way-farers have been discovered frozen to death in the snow.

LARGEST NUMBER EVER BROUGHT IN.

New York, Nov. 24.—The largest number of steerage passengers with two exceptions ever brought to this port in one vessel, came in today on the steamer Main from Bremen. There were two thousand five hundred and fifty-one names on the steerage list.

ONE

Russian Newspaper That Spoke Out

Is Suspended

For an Attack Upon the Emperor

While Another Had Its Issue Confiscated

Because of Its Attack Upon the Minister of the Interior and Criticism of His Policy.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 24.—Interior Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky went to Tsar'skoe Selo today to present the Zemstvo's memorial to Emperor Nicholas. The situation is extremely delicate. Two incidents have occurred both of which much militate against the liberals and increase the difficulty of Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky's position. Prince Mestchersky, editor of the Grasp Dinan, who is head of the reactionary press, this morning unmasked his batteries, attacking the interior minister in such a fashion for his liberal tendencies that Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky for the first time since he assumed the ministry, ordered the confiscation of the issue. In the strength of the influence behind such an attack lies the real significance of Prince Mestchersky's act. At the same time from the opposite direction the Nasha Zvezda (our life) a new radical paper, authorized by Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky, indulges in a direct attack on the emperor with the result that the minister ordered the suspension of the publication.

Not Until Tomorrow. St. Petersburg, Nov. 24.—The Anglo-Russian convention on the subject of the North Sea incident will probably not be signed until tomorrow.

JAPANESE SHELLS

Set Fire to a Large Quantity of Coal at Port Arthur.

Chefoo, Nov. 24.6 p. m.—A huge pile of coal near the railway station at Port Arthur was ignited by Japanese shells on November 20, and according to Chinese arriving here by junk today it was still burning when they left the besieged town on November 22. A Japanese torpedo boat destroyer verhaunted this junk but allowed it to proceed. Another junk with six Hindoos on board was taken on shore where the junk was burned. The passengers were sent to Daluy.

JAPANESE CAPTURED THE RUSSIANS' MEAT.

Chefoo, Nov. 24.—The reports concerning the capture of the Tung Chow laden with thirty thousand tins of meat was captured by the Japanese yesterday while trying to enter Port Arthur appear to be correct. The Tung Chow was a British vessel and belonged to Butterfield and Swire of Shanghai. Last Monday when leaving Shanghai she was transferred at the last moment to a man believed to be acting for the Russian government.

LAKE BLUFF SITE IS SELECTED.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Morton announces that the board appointed to select a training station on the Great Lakes has unanimously recommended that the Lake Bluff site, thirty miles north of Chicago be selected. The president has approved the selection. The initial appropriation for this work has already been made and it will be the policy of the secretary to rush the work to completion as rapidly as possible.

FOUR MEN

Were Drowned by the Boat Capsizing.

Disaster Overtook a Ferry Boat at Port Huron.

When Within One Hundred Yards of the Dock at Sarnia a Back Wind Upset the Craft.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 24.—The row boat of William Briggs, the night ferry man between this city and Sarnia, Ont., which is directly across the St. Clair river from here was upset in the Sarnia dock early today and four men who were passengers were drowned.

The drowned:

ALFRED GREEN, engineer, St. Thomas, Ont.

JOHN CHRENNAN, fireman, St. Thomas.

JOHN DACK, brakeman, St. Thomas, Ont.

JAS. CONNELL, bar-keeper, Sarnia, Ont.

Ferryman Briggs left the Port Huron dock with six passengers in his row boat. A heavy sea was running on the running, kicked up by the strong north wind that was blowing. The boat pitched and tossed on the waves but made the passage safely until within about 100 yards of the Sarnia dock. Then a heavy back swell from the shore suddenly caught the craft and capsized her. Ferryman Briggs, John Dobson an engineer, of St. Thomas and Daniel Fisher, a conductor of Ridgeway, Ont., saved themselves by hanging to the overturned boat, but the other four passengers were drowned. The three railroad men who were drowned were Pere Marquette railroad employes.

DENOMINATIONS

United in the Thanksgiving Services in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 24.—With "unity in things necessary; liberty in what is doubtful; charity in all things" as the motto of the day, an inter-denominational Thanksgiving service was held in the Detroit opera house today, participated in by ministers of nine denominations. They included a Jewish Rabbi, a Catholic priest and Baptist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Methodist, Universalist, and Unitarian pastors.

DELAY

In Material Holds Back the Work.

Wok is being pushed on the Lima Fort Wayne traction line and the track is laid from Delphos west to the Tomlinson farm. Were it not for a car load of splices that is missing the line would have been into Van Wert by this time. S. M. Shaffer, who has the contract for furnishing the crushed stone for the concrete work, is already hauling the stone for the work. By the fifth of next month the road will be balasted most of the way, and cars will be running on schedule time by the 15th of December.

ECHO

From the Big Aultman Failure.

Only One Third

Of the Face Value of the Claims

Will Be Paid to the Creditors of the Concern by Receiver Sullivan.

One Of the Many Instances in Which Prosperity of the Roosevelt Sort Proved a Failure.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 24.—The report of J. J. Sullivan, receiver for the Aultman Co., of Canton, which recently failed, was filed in the United States district court here today. It shows the total appraised assets of the company to be $1,644,070; total direct liabilities $890,003.

Contingent liabilities of endorsements of jobbers notes including those for the Western Supply Co., the Cedar Rapids Supply Co., the E. T. Kenny Co., the Kenyon-Roseng Co. amounts to $2,483,902; contingent liabilities as endorsers for the Arctic Machine Co., together with miscellaneous trade paper $3,770,426. Total direct and contingent liabilities $7,144,301.

Receiver Sullivan in an interview today said it was uncertain as to what the creditors would realize. He was inclined to think, however, that the Aultman creditors proper would receive from 25 to 30 cents on the dollar. This much would be realized on a fair estimate from the Aultman property alone, and not including anything from auxiliary companies.

Mr. Sullivan said he believed a considerable amount of the paper of the various branch concerns endorsed by the Aultman Co., would be liquidated.

FORGED

Note Cashed at a Bank at Kalida

Results in the Arrest of a Saloon Keeper.

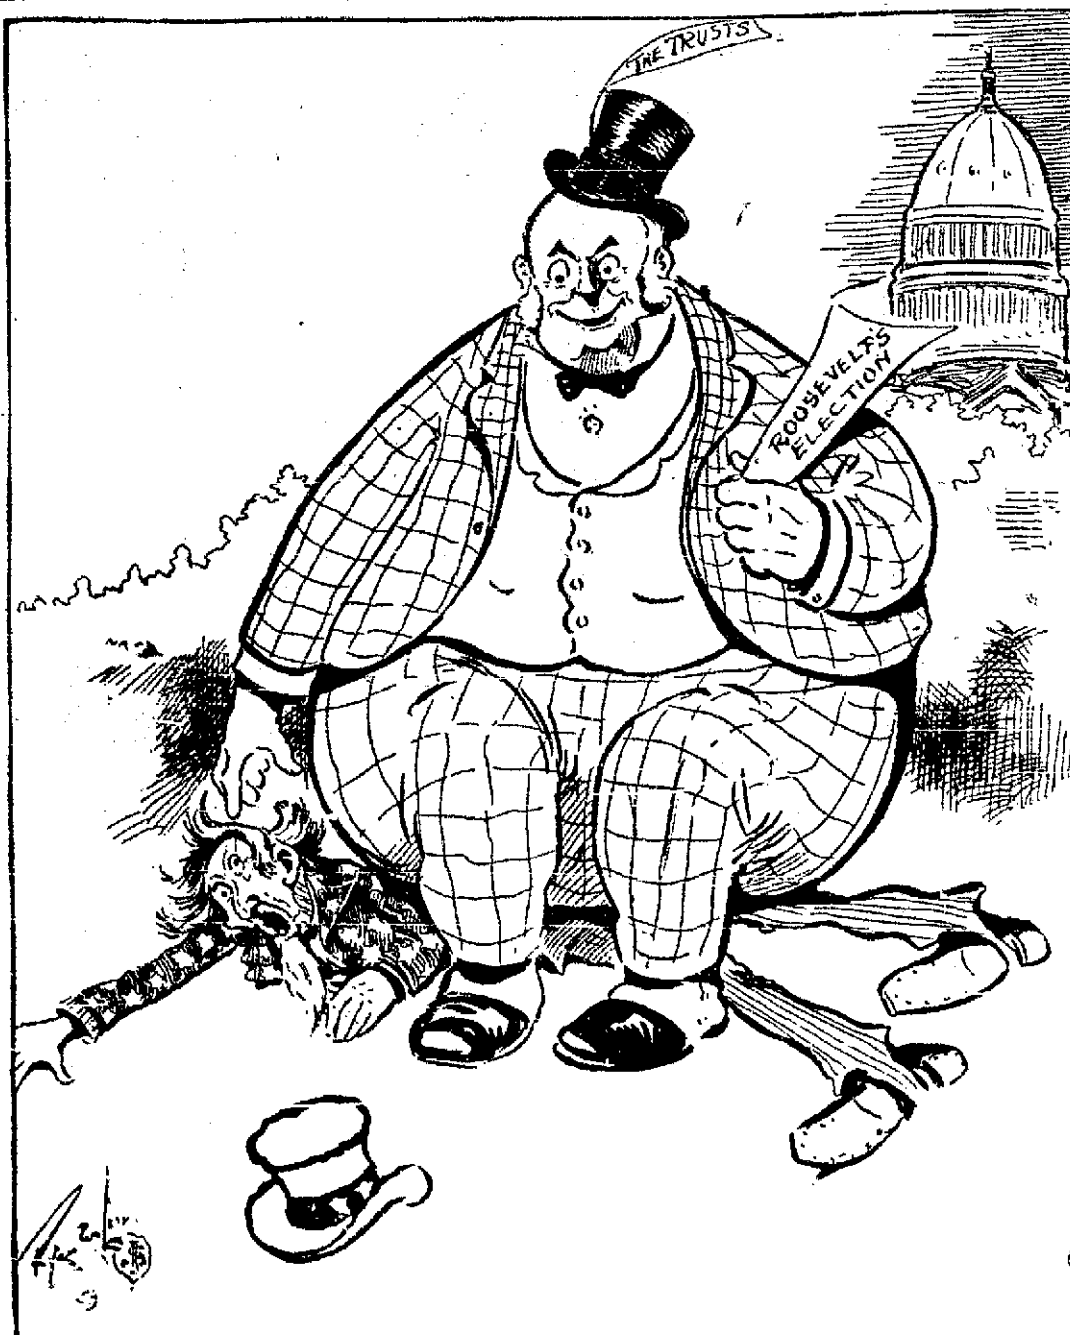

Bank Paid Ninety-Eight Dollars for the Note and That Sum Was Found in the Pockets of the Prisoner's Son.

John Schmenk, aged about 40 years, a saloonist of Glandorf, Putnam county, was arrested at Columbus Grove last night, charged with having cashed a forged note upon Frank Logan, a wealthy farmer west of that town, at the People's bank in Kalida, securing $100. He was accompanied by his fourteen year old son. Schmenk asked to be searched and nothing was found upon his person bearing upon the matter. When the son was searched the amount of $98 in silver and currency, just as the banker had given Schmenk, was found upon the person of the boy. The remaining $2 went for exchange. Cashier O. C. Parker, of the Kalida bank, identified Schmenk as the man who cashed the note. Following the finding of the money upon the boy he was locked up, and both father and son occupy cells in the Columbus Grove prison. Schmenk is believed to be the man who attempted to cash a note for $500 at the People's Bank in Columbus Grove yesterday, but was turned down.

CONSPIRACY

And Fraud Are Denied in Lawton's Answer.

Boston, Nov. 24.—Conspiracy and fraud are denied by the Thomas Lawton in amendment to the demurrer which he filed today in the Massachusetts supreme court in a suit against Lawson and Co., by the Bay State Gas Co., of Delaware. The action against the firm was begun in April of last year and its purpose was to restrain the defendants from disposing of certain shares of the Bay State Gas Co., as well as bonds of the Buffalo City Gas Co. After denying the allegations of the bill of complaint, Mr. Lawton declares J. Edward Adickes, of Delaware should be joined in the suit as a defendant.

CALL

To the 'Phone Was a Bluff

But It Worked

Like a Charm As a Scheme

To Get Wm. Nunemaker Into the House. Surprise Complete.

South Side Lady Is Now the Bride
of a North End Gentleman.
Other Very Interesting Items.

Tuesday evening, William Nunemaker, of Forest avenue, was one of the most completely surprised men in Lima. After supper he went to the hall to do some chores, and shortly afterward was called to the house and informed that he was wanted at the phone. He stepped to the phone, picked the receiver to his ear and said "Hello," and was promptly answered by about thirty voices. So complete was the surprise that he forgot to hang up the receiver.

After games, social chats and music in the Second street Mandolin club, a most delightful and refreshing lunch was served. A number of valuable presents now adorn the Nunemaker home as tokens of the esteem in which he is held by his neighbors and friends.

One of the most laughable events of the evening was a peanut race, in which Mrs. Homer Wood carried off the first prize, a beautiful vase, while Orville Zurnehly (Uncle Abe) was consoling with a pair of shells.

Among those who called to spend the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Wood and daughter Roena, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wood and son Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Elin Roush and daughter Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook and daughter Myrtle, Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Arnold and son Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Not a Favorite Breed.
Lovers of good, plain dogs which have been allowed to grow naturally will appreciate the story of the English pedlar who went to a dealer in dogs and thus described what he wanted:

"Hi wants a kind of dog about so high an' so long. He's a kind of greyhound, an' yit it ain't a greyhound, because 'is tyle is shorter nor any o' these 'ere greyhounds an' 'is nose is shorter an' 'e ain't so slim round the body. But still 'e's a kind of greyhound. Do you keep such dogs?"

"No," replied the dog man. "We drowns 'em."

An Awkward Compliment.
Jones is nothing if not gallant. Mrs. Brown is exactly the same age as her husband, but she will not admit it. "My husband is forty," she said to some friends the other day, "you wouldn't believe it, but there's actually ten years' difference in our ages."

Not Serious.
Mr. Short—My dear Miss Kate, I have a very serious question I wish to ask you, Miss Long—What is it, pray? Mr. Short—Will you marry me? Miss Long (seemingly)—Do you call that serious, Mr. Short? Why, I don't think I ever heard anything so ridiculous.

Cynical.
Cynicus—The propagation of the human race depends upon early marriages. Sillicus—How do you make that out? Cynicus—Well, if a man waited until he was really old enough to get married he wouldn't.—Philadelphia Record.

CUPID'S TILLER

(Copyright, 1904, by H. B. Douglas.)

Just now the girl in the bow and the man at the tiller of the Cupid were not on speaking terms. For fully ten minutes the rigid silence had been broken only by the swish of the boat's prow through the water and by the splash of the waves on her cheeks.

And for fully ten minutes the wind had been rising, with Cupid in full sail. "Why," the girl asked mentally, "doesn't he take a reef?"

"Why," the man wondered, "doesn't she become frightened?"

Savagely he shoved the tiller down and ran up into the wind. He would bring the Cupid about with a whirl that would at least transform the pretty poon on the face in the bow into an expression of amazement.

But the little yacht, unaccustomed to such strenuous handling, balked at the turning and, flapping her white sail pitifully for a minute, dipped over into the stormy waves.

Two "Obst" sounded simultaneously as the man and the girl felt the cold water close over them; then, as they bobbed up, the right arm of the man firmly encircled the girl's waist, while he held the boat with the other. Without a word he raised her to the side of the overturned yacht and climbed up himself.

The girl laughed. "It's pretty wet," she said, trying hard to keep her balance on the wave rocked boat.

"Ah—yes!" Plainly the man was relieved. For a minute he had cursed his own recklessness, but if she were only "wet" need he worry?

A lapse of a minute ensued while they adjusted themselves to their unusual positions.

"Aren't you sorry?" asked the girl, surveying her bedraggled dock frock.

"Aren't you?" the man retorted. The plunging had not cleared the atmosphere; remnants of the frigidity remained.

"For what?" the girl asked innocently. The sun was beating down on her and restoring her wet curls to their natural glimmering golden hue.

"For this," indicating the position of the Cupid.

"I didn't do it."

"But you drove me to it," the man persisted.

"I hadn't said a word for hours when you deliberately ran into the wind and—upset us," she declared emphatically.

They were drifting to shore, but not to their own side of the sound. Neither of them noticed where their boat was heading.

"I didn't think she'd go over, but I'm glad now that she did." The man's face had taken on an expression of determination.

"Oh!" with utter astonishment. "And I might have been drowned."

"Not while I was with you," the man assured her.

After a minute the girl looked at him. "How are we to get home?" she asked. "I have an engagement this evening."

"I am aware of that," the man returned. "And with me."

"I believe I explained to you before—before the boat went over—that I was not going with you to that dance."

"And I am explaining to you now that until you promise to go with me instead of that Thompson fellow to-night you will not go at all." His tone was firm.

A wave nearly threw them off their balance, and the sail flapped back and forth joyously in the water. The Cupid was laughing.

The man went on: "It is a mean advantage, but think, haven't you played with me long enough? Aren't you going to tell me what I've wanted to know so long?" He moved closer to her and in so doing rocked the boat dangerously.

"No," the girl answered between breaths.

"Then we'll stay here. We will remain on this overturned boat until you promise to marry me—and soon too."

"But if—I don't love you," argued the girl, avoiding his eyes.

"You do, though," he said confidently.

The girl elevated her eyebrows. Things had taken a new turn.

"I'll drown if—if we stay here much longer," she said after a minute, trying to assume a pleading tone.

The man drew still nearer—almost close. "Don't you love me, dear?" he asked.

"You—yes," she said, grabbing the side of the boat as a big wave swept them several feet on its crest.

The man put his arm slowly, firmly, about her waist. "And you will marry me?"

He heard only the flapping of the Cupid's sail in the water. The girl did not answer.

"Won't you?" he repeated.

The girl slid slowly from his embrace, looking him full in the eyes. Her feet touched the water.

"Yes," she cried, and struck out among the waves with a stroke even the man might have envied her—had he not been too astonished.

"And—back," she called between waves, "you—see—I—I did not have to say 'yes.' I can swim."

The man righted the Cupid, but when the girl again, wet but still pretty, sat beside him at the tiller he noticed where they had drifted.

"You—engagement?" he cried.

"Oh, and see where we are," she said, but there was no regret in her tone.

"Yes, see where you are," the man repeated, encircling her with his arms. "And you're going to remain here always."

The Cupid flapped her sails knowingly and, manned by a happier crew, crossed the sound.

WEIRD CEREMONY.

(Springfield (Mo.) Leader.)

No region in the United States is more noted for its prehistoric lore and romantic history than the Ozark mountains, says W. C. Carter, who has just returned from a visit to what may be called the wilderness of the Southwest, where one day 50 miles from a railroad.

While there he witnessed a weird scene that has been going on annually, it is said, ever since Columbus discovered America, and no one knows how long before. There is a peak down there called "Bald Lave," which is the scene every year of the remarkable occurrence referred to. The annual visit of the Indians this year took place not long since and the first intimation of it was given by a fisherman and hunter.

A party was made up to visit the peak and observe the peculiar scene. The peak is 1,800 feet above sea level, and the only vegetation upon it, except some very grass, is a lone peach tree. The party reached the foot of the peak about dusk, and, peeping from their places of vantage, they saw an Indian band of 15 or 20 sitting around a camp fire.

Presently one of them arose and threw a pile of pine knots upon the fire, which made a bright light.

The others of the band came up and they all walked toward the peach tree in single file. They are all dressed in war paint and feathers and when a circle was formed around the peach tree the whole band began a doleful chant. At short intervals an Indian would take one of the ripe peaches from the tree and eat it, and the dance was kept up with its incantations until the Indians felt exhausted.

The watching party was awe-stricken and departed as silently as it had come to the place. A large party was gathered together next day, all heavily armed, and returned to the place, but when they reached the mountain there was a smoldering camp fire and many other signs of the great powwow, but the Indians were gone.

When You Have a Bad Cold.
You want a remedy that will not only give quick relief but effect a permanent cure.

FAMOUS SIEGES.

Many of Greater Duration Than That of Port Arthur.

Memphis Commercial Appeal.
A siege always has its elements of excitement and romance. It is a contest of mental as well as of physical forces. The sieges of Port Arthur, which is so vividly interesting to the whole world, brings to mind many of the famous sieges of history. Since the 13th of last May the town, has been shut off from the world by an army of marvellous size and equipment, and the beleaguered people within are suffering untold hardships. And yet this is an exceedingly short siege compared to some of which we read. Before the Christian era Greece camped nine years on the Trojan plain before she "burned the towerless towers of Ilium." Rome, with her primitive battering rams and wooden weapons, picked 10 years at the walls of Veil before her eagles were triumphant. And her splendid legions were held at bay for two years before Scipio at last stood as conqueror among the ruins of Carthage. During those two frightful years the woman of the city, in mortal terror of the "wolves from the Tiber," worked shoulder to shoulder with the men in the trenches.

In more recent years the siege of Sebastopol in the Crimean War easily takes precedence for daring and picturesque achievement. For 11 months the smoke of battle hung like a hair over the Redan and the Malakoff, those supposedly impregnable forts.

The year 1857 was made memorable by the siege of Lucknow. Here in this city of glittering Oriental beauty 300 English soldiers, with the indomitable spirit of the Anglo-Saxon bent about the residency, while the women, knowing their fate if surrender came, prayed ever hour for death or rescue. For months of this slow torture went by, and despair began to settle on the garrison; defeat seemed inevitable, when one day a new sound mingled with the noises the garrison already knew, and a Scotch lassic, with her ear to the ground, recognized the new note and cried out the rescue to the others: "It is the pibrochs of the Highlands! We are saved; we are saved!" And to the music of those pipes the gallant band of Scots and English cut their way to their starving countrymen, leaving behind a path of blood thick-strewn with Sepoy dead.

In the Franco-Prussian War Paris held the enemy back for 127 days, yielding at last not to assault but to starvation. Then there is Plevna. Here the Turks, under Osman Pasha, entrenched themselves against the Russians, and in the 142 days of siege that followed 70,000 men gave up their lives. Then the Pasha capitulated. The siege and capture of Plevna making interesting reading for the student of military tactics.

In the history of our own country sieges are rare. There was the so-called siege of Boston; the 20 days at Yorktown, which closed the revolution, and in the Civil War the siege of Vicksburg, which city held out against Grant for some 70 days. During much of this time the people of the town lived in their cellars or burrowed into the bluffs and cliffs to escape the bursting shells of the assailants. Here in Memphis was heard the detonation of that fierce bombardment. During the Spanish-American War there befell the siege of Santiago, too familiar for more than a mention. During the Boer War, in South Africa, people all over the world asked for 118 days, for during that length of time Ladysmith was holding out against the beleaguering foe.

THE WEATHER.

Washington, Nov. 24.—For Ohio, fair, colder tonight; Friday fair.

Everybody would be might thankful to know the facts about Kuroki.
Despatches have him dead, and cable-
grams have him pressing forward.

Before the election it was "stand pat," now come the "stand pat" republicans, headed by Knox, who have decided that the revenues of the government should be increased, and that the tariff rates should be raised to bring this about.

The people of Ohio should offer up unlimited praise and thanks for one condition that exists in the state, and that is that the existence of a municipal code will more than likely put Ohio in the democratic column after next November.

A BAREFOOT MAID.

Louis Fleischmann who established
the "bread line" in New York, always maintained that the poor were the most sensitive of persons and quickest to resent tactless sympathy. In support of his assertion he said that one day while an American was on a walking tour in Scotland he met a tall and comely young woman, who walked barefoot. Surprised, the traveler stopped her and inquired: "Do all the people about here go barefoot?"
"Some of them do, and the rest mind
their own business," was the reply.—

ANXIOUS MOMENTS.

Some of the most anxious hours of a mother's life are those when the little ones of the household have the croup. There is no other medicine so effective in this terrible malady as Foley's Honey and Tar. It is a household favorite for throat and lung troubles, and as it contains no opiates or other poisons it can be safely given.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Married men get a lot of wireless messages from their wives.
Some congressmen have fixed opinions—after the ladies see them.
A woman would rather spend $2
for dry goods than one for groceries.
Man proposes—but he doesn't do it often enough to please the fair sex.
Occasionally you meet a woman of few words—but she keeps them busy.
An heiress is always suspicious of a man who declares he can't live without her.
A New York youth lost $3,000,000
in less than three seconds recently.
The heiress said "No."
If the lover attempts to reciprocate
by loving all the world, his best girl would strenuously object.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Do the best you can and you will be surprised how well you do.

It is one sign that you are all right
when you believe that others are.

The smartest man we ever knew and the one who could use the longest words could not hold a job.

So many of us act the fool while thinking we are acting smart. Look yourself over. Do you do it?

Don't be too confidential; don't tell every one the story of your life. It will be soon enough to tell that when you stand before St. Peter.

Remaining in the rut isn't so bad.
Most successful men are found in the rut; most failures are found outside of it.—Atchison Globe.

The Word "Marmalade."

The word "marmalade" is apparently derived from the Portuguese marmelo,
a "quince," which, again, is from mid-Latin malumellum, Greek melinellon,
"honeysuckle," or "sweet apple." The word is at least as old as the reign of Henry VIII. The following sentence occurs in a letter from that monarch:

"The most heartily thanketh her good ladyship for her marmalade," which by a comparison of other letters was apparently made of quinces.

Anne Bassel, Lady Lisle's daughter, gives the name "codlins" to her mother's dainties. Her letters giving the account of the presentation of the said
marmalade to the king and relating how he desired a repetition of the same as soon as might be have been printed more than once.—Pearson's.

Animals Which Rarely Drink.

Naturalists have discovered many animals which seem to need no water
or which drink only at rare intervals.
There is a certain breed of gazelles,
which never drink, and the llamas of Patagonia live for years without taking water. There is a particular class of cattle near Losere, in France, that rarely touches water, but in spite of this fact these cattle give milk of a rich quality, from which excellent cheese is made. Many naturalists have the theory that hares do not drink or that water is not a necessity for them,
and that the dew on the grass is sufficient for their needs.

Str. Andrew Clark's Aphorisms.

The late Sir Andrew Clark, who was
Mr. Gladstone's physician, made use of the following aphorisms during a conversation with Miss Frances Willard:
"Labor is the life of life." "Ease
is the way to disease." "The highest use of an organ lies in the fullest discharge of its functions." There is a first of food for reflection in these three sentences.

His Idea.

Wall Street.—So your son is studying law. Do you expect that he will stick to it? Speculator.—Oh, no, I just want him to know enough about it so that he will be able to evade it successfully.
—Detroit Free Press.

Quite Engaging.

"She is a very sweet girl."
"Why, the heartless girl had promised to marry four different men."
"Well, that's what I mean, her nature is most engaging."

Donintheor's Model

By A. M. DAVIES OGDEN

It was a very bright person
I saw sort of a companion. Yes, companion to an elderly gentleman, and I did not know when I shall be married," glancing at the ring. "It is because the gentleman is doing out that I am free tonight. So do let us enjoy it. Ah, here comes our dinner.
You will have soup."

"And am I really never to see you again?" she asked. The girl lifted her eyes. "I am not," she answered to their mute appeal.
"You are right. It is best," he said steadily. The girl's face cleared.
"And—and you will go on and work,
make yourself famous," she insisted.
"Attend Mr. Anthony Frewell's reception tomorrow night."

"If you wish it. And now goodbye.
Give the man your own address. I will not listen. And if ever I do accomplish anything remember that it is first of all due to you. Goodbye."

As Donintheor next evening entered Sir Anthony Frewell's house the blaze of lights and sounds of music fairly dazzled him. At the announcement of his name the "It. A." shook him warmly by the hand.
"I am glad to meet you," exclaimed
the great man cordially. "Your work shows remarkable promise, and I think it likely—yes, very likely—that yours
may be the prize design in our competition. My little daughter tells me that she has already met you," he continued. "She is not out yet, but begged
so hard to be allowed down tonight
that I finally consented. You know, these motherless girls usually have their own way." with a smile.

But the artist hardly heard. He was watching a girl, the back of whose head looked oddly familiar. As if conscious of his gaze, she turned, then came slowly forward. Sir Anthony patented her hand.

"This is my maid, and she does not deserve to be here after the naughty way in which she ran off from Miss Finch yesterday."

The girl, her mouth curling mischievously, glanced up at the artist.

"I certainly played truant," she admitted. "Come, Mr. Donintheor, can I not present you to some of these pretty girls?"

Donintheor, doggedly persistent,
drew her into the conservatory.

"Why—why did you do it?" he demanded. Miss Frewell laughed.

"Because I pleased, and because—I knew you all the time and—and wanted to see if I would like you."

"And you decided—coming dangerously close. The girl's breath quickened."

"I haven't decided yet," she responded lamely. Donintheor, touching the now ringless hand only half concealed by its lace mitt, gazed inquiringly.

"And this?"
She had the grace to blush.

"That was my chapman. It is an engagement ring, my mother's, which I always wear, though not always on that hand."

Donintheor's clasp tightened.

"Ah, and when you have decided about me, when the success that seems about to be achieved shall have definitely crowned my work, may I dare I hope that you will wear another ring—
mine?" He was holding both hands now unheeded and bent lower to catch her answer. "May I put one on the proper finger, dear?" The girl, her lashes fluttering, dropped her head.

Dining With John Adams.

In the year 1818 Henry Bradshaw Pearson, an Englishman, dined with John Adams, second president of the United States, at the Boston home of the fine old statesman, then eighty-four years old. The Sunday dinner was as follows: First course, a pudding made of Indian corn, molasses and butter; second, veal, bacon, beef
and Indian beans, madeira wine, of which each drank two glasses. "We sat down to dinner at 1 o'clock. At 2
nearly all went a second time to church.
For tea we had pound cake, sweet bread and butter, and bread made of Indian corn and rice. Tea was brought from the kitchen and handed round by a neat white servant girl." Pearson says further: "The establishment of this political patriarch consists of a house two stories high, containing, I believe, eight rooms, of two men and three maid servants, three horses and a plain carriage."

An Ancient Irish Custom.

In the district known as "the Valley
of Forth," in County Wexford, Ireland, is to be found a race of hardworking,
industrious peasants, living in thatched cottages with clean, whitewashed walls, which by their perfect whiteness
at once arrest the attention of the visitor. These people differ in many respects from the inhabitants of the other parts of the same county and have habits and customs peculiar to themselves. When a funeral takes place two wooden crosses are provided. On the way to the cemetery a halt is made at a certain spot by the side of the road. Here prayers are said for the deceased, after which one
cross is deposited in a haythorn bush or under it. The procession then goes on its way, and after the interment
the other cross is fixed at the head of the grave. This strange custom dates from time immemorial, as the great pile of crosses by the roadside indicates.

INNUEUDO

Fred—I think that fellow Harry Leer is a nincompoop. He's going to give a dinner to a lot of educated monkeys.

George.—Well, what are you sore about? Didn't he invite you?—Exchange.

How an Artist Secured Recognition

This is a true story.
About the middle of the last century
there lived in France a really little boy. He was of an intellectual cast and his mother desired to give him an education. To do this she practiced placing economy and often worked in the fields, as so many peasant women
do in France. The boy made progress in his studies, but a strange fever was arrested. So when he was fifteen, it was determined that he should go to Paris with a view to making a painter of himself.

"Go, Bastian, my dear boy," said his mother, "and may you one day be able to support yourself by selling your pictures."

The boy studied and painted for seven years. Meanwhile he had become a man and relied on his own exertions for a livelihood. He found it rather a life bordering on starvation.
Still he struggled on and though the world did not care to buy his pictures
he made slow but sure improvement.
The first thing for an artist in France
to do is to paint a picture worthy of the salon. If this picture passes the committee and is hung on the walls that stamp the painter as proficient in art, Bastian started and worked on a picture for this purpose, but just as he was finishing it the Franco-Prussian war came on and the Prussians marched with but little delay to Paris and laid siege to the city.

The salon was forgotten in the great work of defense. Bastian went with the others into the trenches, but on the first day of the siege a shell fell at his feet and wounded him. He was carried to his home in the country,
where he lay ill and idle for two years.
The work on his picture for the salon
had been ruined during the siege by a shell that exploded in his studio, but Bastian could not remain idle always,
and as he was too delicate for manual
labor he resolved to return to Paris.

There was no prospect of his making a success at painting pictures to sell
in the usual way, so he painted cheap
fans. But even this was high art compared with what followed. One day a patent medicine manufacturer
gave him an order to paint a picture illustrating his remedy's virtues. There is something horrible to one of an artistic nature in thus degrading his beloved art. Nevertheless the price to be paid for the picture would give Bastian the wherewithal to silence his hunger for several months. He repressed his distaste and undertook the work.

The theme he selected was a landscape bathed in the sunlight of April.
The leaves on the trees were of that tender pale green only seen for a week or two in the month of sunshine and showers. Around a fountain danced
a group of young girls. The advertising feature was that the fountain came from the spring of the elixir of youth,
or the patent medicine.

Bastian, being a true artist, while he worked forgot the ignominy to which his picture was to be put and became absorbed in it. The landscape and the dancing girls under his touch became things of beauty. The coloring was delicious; the delicate leaves shone
in the soft April sunlight; the maidens became living beings, fair and graceful.

When the picture was finished his creator looked at it, and the melancholy face came upon him that it was to be used as an advertisement. He could not resign himself to believe that it was not fitted for a better purpose.
Indeed, he was much pleased with his work. While he was musing before it the man who had ordered it came in.

"Let me offer it at the salon," pleaded Bastian.

Now, the patent medicine man knew no more about the rules regulating the salon than he knew of art.

"The very thing," he said. "But first paint a rainbow arching over the fountain with the name of my medicine on it."

Bastian explained that such a feature would not pass at the salon and it would ruin the picture as a work of art.

"Very well," said the manufacturer angrily. "Then I will not pay you a sou for it."

Bastian was in despair. He could not give up the price of his labor without going hungry. There was but a slender chance of the picture's being accepted at the salon. Hundreds of hopeful artists send pictures there to be sure they refused. Would he not meet the same fate? Nevertheless there was something so attractive about his picture that he had not the heart to spoil
it by a glaring advertisement. He resolved to go hungry and send his picture to the salon.

Then came a weary waiting while his contribution to art was being examined with hosts of others. One day news came that his picture had been admitted.

It was a relief, but did not insure success. Would it have a place before picture lovers merely or would they prize it?

The result, though it did not all come at once, was pronounced. The picture attracted great attention sold for a good price, and orders came for others.
Bastian, relieved of his distress and finding himself enabled to do the best work, left off painting fans, and so far as pictures for advertisements were concerned he was doomed far above them. He became a patient laborer in an exalted field and in time produced pictures that placed him among the greatest French painters.

But what said the manufacturer of medicines?

"What a pity that so valuable an advertisement should have been spoiled!"

A PERTINENT QUESTION.

The Pennsylvania railway will take the most extraordinary precautions to protect President Roosevelt from accident during his luxurious journey from Washington to St. Louis, beginning next Thursday evening says
the Columbus Citizen. "In the first place a pilot train will go in advance of the presidential train. This is a it would be impracticable to provide for the general traveling public, but the other measures taken by the Pennsylvania company on this occasion perhaps should not be entirely beyond the reach of the average citizen who travels in no private car and is obliged to pay his way.

There will be a special inspection of all division engineers covering the time until the presidential train has passed over the respective divisions.
A track walker will be on every mile
of track between Washington and St.
Louis ahead of the pilot train. There will be a daylight inspection of the tracks by the chief engineers during 24 hours preceding the passage of the train, and division superintendents will also make special passes over their tracks.

The whole country is interested in the president's safety at all times, but particularly while he is traveling. The people will applaud every precaution taken for his safety on the coming trip, but they may also inquire why such of these precautions are as practicable for every day use should not be taken every day for the benefit of the traveling public, instead of only when a presidential train dashes across the country. The loss of life from railway accidents suggest that at least some of the precautions taken for the president might be justly extended to the average citizen.

THE KAISER'S COOKS.

Story Stories.

Feeding the German Emperor is no light task. Despite all that is said about the Kaiser's Spartan habits,
there are few monarchs who keep more elaborate tables. He has no fewer than four chefs—Senftenstuecker,
a German; Harding, an Englishman;
an Italian and a Frenchman—so that he can have his meals for the day
served in the style of whatever nation he may happen to fancy. Each of these chefs has his staff of assistants, while in addition, there is an individual who may safely be described as "sausages maker to the Kaiser." His Majesty is very fond of the huge white frankfurter sausage, and has a supply of them made fresh every day in his own kitchen.

When engaged in maneuvering his army on a big field day these frankfurters and bread washed down with lager beer invariably form the Kaiser's luncheon. In addition to all these cooks, there is a special staff
to prepare meals for the younger of the Princesses and the Princesses, who are not allowed to partake of the rich dishes the elder members of the family indulge in.

NEW

Bridge to Be Constructed

By Lake Erie

To Accommodate the Big Moguls.

Bridge at That Point Is Too Frail for the Weight and a Modern One Will Soon Take Its Place.

The Lake Erie & Western is continuing to make improvements whenever they are needed, and some of them will demand a considerable outlay of capital. At the present time the 110 per cent engines, one of which was doing duty on freight through Lima yesterday cannot go beyond Fremont on account of the bridge over the river being too frail. It is the purpose to put in a fine new bridge at that point that will be equal to any emergency. All of the big Lake Erie battleships and class B 3 battleships, about 20 in number cannot be used on through freight beyond Fremont until after this improvement is made.

Car Shortage.

Officers of the Lake Shore, Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio say that they are very short in their daily supply of cars. On all of these lines the shortage runs from 2,500 to 5,000 cars, and there appears to be no relief in sight. The situation on the Wabash, the Grand Trunk, the Erie, the Nickel Plate, the Michigan Central and the Pere Marquette roads is gradually assuming the same condition, the traffic varying of course, but steadily gaining in volume.

The Erie has inaugurated another system which will in the dull seasons considerably reduce the expenses incurred in running trains. In the future, whenever it is possible freight trains are to be sent out with but one brakeman as it is not thought that it is necessary except on heavy trains to use two. At the present time while the business is very heavy it will affect but few men but when the dull season comes a large number will be laid off along the line.

DIED HAPPY.

Congressman Fitzgerald's latest story is of an Irish couple in Boston whose connubial bliss was occasionally disturbed by violent misunderstandings. They were devoted to their own way, however, and when the husband died he left a temporarily inconsolable widow. A friend dropped in to see how she was getting along, and in the course of a chat remarked: "I'm glad to hear that poor Mike died happy, anyway." "Indeed he did, Mrs. Lafferty," was the reasonably cheerful reply. "Sure, the last thing he done was to crack me over the head with a medicine bottle, the darling."—Chicago Chronicle.

BEARDLESS PRESIDENTS.

Boston Globe—When Mr. Roosevelt is inaugurated on March 1, 1905, he will be the second president of the nation to wear a mustache. Grover Cleveland was the first.

THE IDLER.

Dan Mooney and J. T. Schoonover, attorneys of St. Marys, have brought injunction proceedings against the city enjoining them from selling $21,000 highway improvement bonds that were to be used in improving the highways and inducing factories to locate here. The citizens are greatly aroused over the action, as several factories were contemplating locating there, and the Hersler Pump Works has its building erected awaiting the bonus with which to buy machinery.

Mrs. Fremore Young, of Beaverdam, and Mrs. Frank Creps, of Lima, were guests of the latter's brother, H. J. Call and wife, Friday, Nov. 18, this being the 66th birthday of Mr. Call's mother, who has been visiting her son and old acquaintances here for the last three or four weeks. Mrs. Call returned to Lima on the same evening with her daughter, Mrs. Creps, where she is making her home.

To be two hundred miles from home and still enjoy a home-prepared dinner from a dear mother's own hands was the happy lot that today befell Samuel Morris, a former Limalite who is now residing at Englewood, Ill., where he is chief clerk in the Erie railroad offices. A baked chicken, a mince pie and a pumpkin pie, prepared by his mother, together with a bottle of good wine, were received at Englewood by Sam, today, from his brothers, Dan, Jeff and Simon Morris, of the Morris Bros. clothing store.

LEGAL

Business Takes a Back Seat

To Do Honors

To Presidents' Proclamation.

Court and Jury Have Both Retired From the Grind for the Day

And Officers and Deputies Have Hurried Through the Work To Enjoy the Leisure That Comes With It.

The usual Thanksgiving holiday air prevailed at the temple of justice today, and only an hour or two of pressing work kept some of the officials and deputies at their desks. The petit jury was dismissed after the finding of a verdict in the Coll vs. Montague case, Tuesday evening, and the assignment failed to bring a case to the surface for trial yesterday.

Congratulations to All.

The marriage license record, while indicating an increase over the ordinary day, is not up to last year when 26 permits were issued. The day before Thanksgiving brought fifteen applicants and there were one or two late arrivals, but 1904 will fall short about ten. Another statistical comparison may be made in the ages of the contracting parties, who are far below the average, but from that conclusion it is not possible to arrive at the determination that the United States is coupling up below what has been established as a marriageable period.

In Lima and all of the townships of the county the marital ceremony will add an extra feast to the Thanksgiving dinner, and congratulations are offered in advance to all who have joined heart and hand for a trudge down life's journey.

Clearing the Docket.

The court docket has been cleaned since the opening of the term in a way that is especially satisfactory to the court, although few cases have been brought to trial. Over 100 cases have been either settled or dismissed and the attorneys show by the signs at the time that they are doing most of their business in the office instead of dragging their disputants into the court room.

Smith Case Monday.

Monday of next week the Smith rape case is assigned, the defendant having pleaded not guilty of assault on a child of tender years. Smith is a man past middle age and takes the stand that a situation, peculiar, to say the least has brought him face to face with a serious proposition.

EFFECTS OF CLIMATE.

Health and Energy Flourish Best in the Temperate Zones.

Grant Dexter in his book on "Weather Influences" says that "inhabitants of hot climates are usually listless, unenterprising, apathetic and improvident. An equable high temperature, especially if moist, weakens body and mind. No long established lowland tropical people is a conquering race in the broad sense of the word. For the inhabitants of the higher altitudes, even under the tropical sun, this may be true, for as we ascend the temperature lessens about 1 degree every 270 feet on an average, and even at the equator we may have a temperate climate. The most favorable temperature for health, which curries with it an aggressive energy which leads and which has led the world march of civilization, is about 45 degrees on an average, and this is found in the temperate zones. From there have come the brain and brain of martial conquest and intellectual attainment. The dominant peoples are shown between the latitudes of 25 degrees and 35 degrees.

"During the London fogs and on days when the weather is particularly depressing in the Bank of England certain sets of books, an error in which would be cumulative and produce disastrous results further on, are locked up and the clerks set to tasks less intricate and important in character. Experience has taught those in charge that the percentage of error increases many fold during such climatic conditions and that it is money in pocket to yield to them. The same necessity for cessation of certain lines of work during bad spells of weather is recognized by the larger banking institutions in New York and the other eastern cities.

"It has been the universal experience of the superintendents of prisons and asylums for the insane that the persons in their charge varied so markedly with the meteorological conditions that no man could doubt that the relation between the weather and emotional states was any other than that of cause and effect. When asked, however, what definite conditions of the weather tended to be the most productive of emotional abnormalities no satisfactory answer could be made."

Sympathy Versus Talent

(Original)
Clive Arvine was endowed with marked personal beauty. Perhaps he would have been unconscious of it had not the girls of his acquaintance constantly reminded him of it. Arvine instead of being flattered was disgusted. Beauty in his eyes was of little value. What he prized especially was talent. He was not inclined to marry, fearing that his wife would have been won by his good looks, whereas he wished to be loved for his brain and ability.

Arvine lived in bachelor quarters looking into a court. One morning on the opposite side of the court he saw a young girl sitting at a window. There was a tinge of melancholy about her face that at once won the young man's sympathy. He watched her for a long while—indeed, till she went away from the window and after that thought about her for the rest of the day. When he went to bed her face was before him, and when he awoke he wondered if she would be at the window during the day.

That afternoon the girl appeared, this time standing with her face to the window, but apparently oblivious to what was to be seen without. He expected when she looked toward him that she would give him the admiring glance he was accustomed to receive from women, but no change in her expression was apparent, and soon after she turned away from the window.

Here was a girl who from all appearances was oblivious to his good looks. Arvine was impelled to try to win her by his talents. He wrote her a manly note stating how he had seen her and asking her consent to a correspondence to be followed by a call. He sent the missive by the janitor, who saw that it was delivered. Arvine waited with a fluttering heart for a reply.

In time he received a note signed "Sybil Beers." Miss Beers did not commit herself, but she did not forbid him to write again, which he took for an assent to his proposition. One thing he noticed—she made no reference to her impressions on seeing him, and the omission pleased him very much. If she had seen him, which, after all, was not likely, since he had been in shadow at the time, she had not been influenced by his beauty. If she had not seen him he hoped to win her before his good looks could come into play.

Arvine wrote excellent verses. His effusions were approved by critics and accepted by the high grade periodicals. Some of his letters to Sybil Beers were written in verse. When he wished to make love to her he did it in verse, not hackadassical, but impressive and extremely delicate in touch. Miss Beers wrote that there was something hanging over her, the nature of which she did not explain, an ordeal that was to be endured in the near future.

Meanwhile the men who were putting all his feelings into his verse and was unwilling that his personal should interfere with his sole effect upon Miss Beers kept away from his window. Then one day she wrote that the time for her ordeal had arrived and she was going away for a time, but that his letters would be forwarded to her. Arvine was greatly touched at her misfortune. He was too delicate to ask its nature, but he wrote her one very brief note, in which he conveyed genuine sympathy. It was followed, however, by an effusion in verse which he called "Bearing the Cross" and another called "A Rift in the Clouds."

Miss Beers was away from home six weeks, at the end of which time she wrote that she would return in a few days. She appointed a certain hour of a certain day for him to be at his window. She did not say whether she had seen him there or not, and he wrote her a point blank question which would have settled the matter. She evaded his question by saying that she had an explanation to make and would make it at his first call. Arvine made up his mind that she had seen him, but that his good looks had made no impression upon her. One more letter he resolved to write before her return, and in that he told her he had been loved for what he did not prize and hoped he had won her for what he did prize. The reply to this was noncommittal.

At the hour appointed for the two to appear at their respective windows Arvine was at his window first. As soon as Miss Beers appeared and saw him she threw up her hands in a paroxysm of delight and admiration.

Arvine was perplexed. Had he been certain of anything he would have dropped it. She evaded his question by saying that she had an explanation to make and would make it at his first call. Arvine made up his mind that she had seen him, but that his good looks had made no impression upon her. One more letter he resolved to write before her return, and in that he told her he had been loved for what he did not prize and hoped he had won her for what he did prize. ## FIGHT VULTURES.

(San Diego Cor. San Francisco, Cal.)

A pitiful story of hunger and destitution and of patience and faith in the ultimate consideration of a kind government is brought from the eastern mountains of this county by men who have been investigating the condition of the Indians on the government reservations near Campo. Indian Agent Charles E. Schell, of Pala, and Charles F. Lummis, the author and editor of Out West, have spent six days among the redmen. The gist of what they have found is harrowing enough to send a shudder through the country.

On the five reservations near Campo, on the edge of the desert, there are at the present time nearly 200 Indians—not the dirty, vicious, untutored, begging creatures who infest the transcontinental railroad stations, but hard working, intelligent, farming people, who cultivate every possible square inch of the practically worthless land reserved for them by the nation.

No rain has fallen to start the seed planted, and there is no water at hand for irrigating. No large reserve food supply is ever possible, and the unfortunate are now subsisting chiefly upon acorns.

"Unless relief comes," said Lummis, "all the Indians will be dead before New Year's day. Such emaciation, such patient suffering among old and young alike, I have never seen before and never want to see again. These Indians loathe the putrid flesh, yet such is their extremity that when they see vultures devouring any animal that has been killed they scare the birds away and take out their larder with the flesh. They also go out and catch rats and mice and eat them."

WON MILLIONS.

The season now nearing a close in the East has been the most disastrous one to race track patrons ever known in the history of the American turf. A conservative bookmaker here tonight estimated that $10,000,000 had been given up during the year by the men who follow the sport. This money has been "absorbed" by the various racing associations and a few bookmakers.

Only three of four big plunders among the vast army of betters have been able to close the season with a profit. These are "Pittsburg Phil" (George E. Smith), Joe Yeager, David Gleason and Fred Eschner. While a number of small bank rolls were lost by a few bookmakers, the majority of the layers are many thousands of dollars ahead.

The most notable bookmakers who have won fortunes, with the amounts they gathered, were: George Wheelock, $172,000; Sol Lichtenstein, $150,000; George Bowles, $60,000; George Rose, $50,000; William Cowen, $80,000; Sam Frank, $34,000; Joe Rose, $35,000; Leo Swatts, $40,000; Frank Tyler (Humming Bird), $100,000, and C. B. Walters, $40,000.

Joe Blume is one of the fortunate bookmakers. Three years ago he was a clerk in a shoe store. Now he is worth $100,000. He became interested in a small field book operated under the name of the "Klondike Club," and made money from the start. Last year his partner bought Oarsman from August Belmont for a song, and the horse won several races when carrying big bets for the firm.

Last summer Blume had a monopoly in the field ring, with 14 books.

C. B. Walters is another layer who began with a small capital. He cleared up $40,000 this year, and recently purchased "Caesar" Young's seat in the big ring.

Frank Tyler, known as the "Humming Bird," is the largest winner of the field plunders. He twice purchased a membership in the Metropolitan Turf Club, but was blackballed. In revenge he went into the field and by operating a big book attracted much of the regular business from the ring.

Fred Eschner is the biggest winner among the plunders. By playing the horses from the ground and watching the preliminary gallops before each contest he managed to pick many winners and secured $100,000 of the bookmakers' money.

George Wheelock left for New York last night. He found business here poor and leaves for an automobile trip on December 1st, which will take in Italy and Egypt.

Business in the Benning ring is very light. The general play is so small that it fails to balance any of the large amounts the plunders are willing to bet. This condition makes a top-heavy market. All that is necessary to create a panic in the odds is the desire of a plunger to bet $2,000. Then prices fall like a house of cards.—Washington Correspondent to the New York World.

ALMOST BROILED.

(Philadelphia cor. Baltimore Sun.)

To be captured by cannibals, fed until he presented a most appetizing spectacle to his captors and to have a dangerously near view of a large, rough gridiron where he was to be roasted until properly browned was the recent experience of Thomas Ellis, a member of the crew of the steamer Astrakhan, which arrived at this port yesterday.

At the time of his experience Ellis was a member of the crew of the sailing ship Alburgh. On July 10, when off the northeast coast of New Guinea, the ship met a storm. The sails were carried away first and the mast soon followed. Upon the morning of the second day land was sighted and the crew got ashore in a small boat. Hardly had they had time to secure a short rest when they were attacked by a band of naked savages. With the aid of a rifle, which kept their pursuers at bay, Captain Reed and three of the men succeeded in escaping, but Ellis and three others were captured.

They were placed in a warm, dry hut and given plenty of vegetable food. Good living and little work had its usual effect, and they began to fatten. It was then they learned that the savages intended to have a gala feast, with them as the principal dish. In the meantime the other sailors had also been captured, but by a more friendly tribe. When they learned that the rest of the party had been captured by cannibals they offered to rescue them. They attacked the cannibals on the day they had set for the feast. The captors were taken by surprise and soon gave way, running in all directions.

Ellis and his companions were found lying, bound, beside a huge fire on which had been placed a crude gridiron.

THE STAGE.

"Arizona," by Augustus Thomas, which has had such a phenomenal success in New York and Chicago is, as the title would indicate, a stage-picture of the scenes, people and costumes of that frontier territory in the great southwest. The people of "Arizona" are cowboys and cavalrymen, ranchers and Mexicans, and the various types of womanhood to be found about a frontier army post and a prosperous ranch. The story thrills with the vigor of western life and is rich in the color of the half-Spanish, half civilized territory from which the piece takes its name. "Arizona" will be seen in this city at Faurot opera house tonight.

A story of heart interest, caused by the kidnapping of a beautiful young girl from her parents by a nomadic tribe, interwoven with a love that is pure, sweet, and sensible, and with enough comedy to bring a smile despite your tears, is related in the beautiful romantic drama as produced this season by that handsome actor-author, Mr. William Bonelli and his company of talented artists, direct from New York City. Mr. Bonelli's historic ability has placed him at the head of American romantic actors, and his superb physical development which is at once the envy of men and the delight of women, make him notable in the annals of stagecraft. His wonderful display of strength in the scenes of "An American Gentleman" prove him the only rival of the great Sandow in the latter's prime, and makes a performance one doesn't forget in a day or a week. "An American Gentleman" will be seen at the Faurot opera house tomorrow night.

The late Charles Hoyt, the builder of farce comedies claimed that his greatest aids were his close observation and memory. He lived a day passed that he did not hear or see something as worth weaving into a play. The actual work of composition he declared was merely a detail. When he had all his ideas arranged he would lock himself in a room with his stenographer and reel off the dialogue. It is claimed that he dictated "A Trip to Chinatown," one of his most successful plays in five days, a remarkable feat when one comes to think of it. This great success, with its bright, catchy music, latest popular songs, clever vaudeville features and a first class company of comedians will be presented at the Faurot opera house on Saturday, matinee and night.

PRECIOUS JADE.

To the Chinaman it is the Embodiment of Beauty.

To the European it is chiefly a curiosity. To the Chinaman it is the most precious of stones. The western man, in his dull, prosaic, scientific way, says that the term jade is popularly employed to describe two minerals, jadeite and nephrite. The scientific value of the jadeite is higher, but its value is lower than that of the other. By the mere process of hand and inspection it is impossible to tell them apart and both are very similar to another stone called nephrite.

Here, on the other hand, is a Chinese definition: "Jade is the quintessence of heaven and earth. It is marked with the dark lines of the Lilia, with the blue tints of streams. It is white as blue bird, red as a cock's comb and yellow as a cooked chestnut."

One of the chief characteristics of jade is its extreme hardness. A special sand, as fine as flour and found only in certain springs, is used in cutting it. In spite of its beauty when cut and polished, jade in its rough state cannot be distinguished by the casual eye from the rubble of the road.

There is nothing more extraordinary than the effect produced by reiteration upon the public mind. Almost any nonsense makes an impression if only it is repeated often enough in print. The fortunes made by songs, hair washes, patent medicines, patent aids to cookery, etc., are witnesses to this curious fact.

There is a form of self advertisement which proves even more pointedly than commercial advertisement the wonderful potency of assertion. It is something far subtler than what we have been discussing, and appeals to a smaller and more select public. In this case the deception goes further, but it is necessary to obtain the full effect that a person who makes the assertion should himself believe in its truth. The power to deceive with which the self deceived are often endowed is remarkable.

By countless assertions a stupid man can convince himself. That is why un-receptive people become so pigheaded and prejudiced as they get older.—London Spectator.

THE DEATH OF BACON.

It Was Brought About Through Stuffing a Fowl With Snow.

It was after stuffing a fowl with snow that Francis Bacon died in the house of the Earl of Arundel at Highgate on April 9, 1626. It was given out that he was suddenly taken ill while prosecuting some discoveries in experimental philosophy in the neighborhood, but Aubrey in his "Lives" tells the exact truth with more of quaint realism than of regard for a great man gone.

"The cause of his lordship's death," says Aubrey, "was trying an experiment as he was taking air in the coach of Dr. Whitthorne. Toward Highgate snow lay, and it came into my lord's thoughts why flesh might not be preserved in snow as in salt."

"Presently they alighted and went into a poor woman's house and bought a hen and made her exonerate it and stuffed the body with snow, and my lord did do it himself. The snow so chilled him that he immediately fell so ill he could not return, but went to the Earl of Arundel's house, which gave him such a cold that in two or three days he died of suffocation."—Pearson's.

Marriage Proposals.

It is a bad plan for a man to ask a girl to be his wife on a very slight acquaintance and a still worse plan for her to accept him under these circumstances. If they keep their heads if it is surely not a very hard thing for them to conclude to wait until they know one another a trifle better before they decide that they are the two persons out of the whole world who are best fitted to live each with the other. When they have made this perfectly clear to their own minds; and not until then, should they become engaged and announce the fact to the world at large. And when they are engaged they should understand the responsibilities of their position and not seek to evade them.—Success.

Nose Bleeding.

Nose bleeding is sometimes a sign of plethora—that is, too great a fullness in the blood vessels. Then it will be accompanied by red skin, redness of the mouth to the lowest limit. Withhold pastry. Give fresh vegetables largely, and when the system has been accustomed to the change adopt very active exercise. It will be within one's discretion to resume the ordinary diet slowly. Plethoric persons need regulating, as they make blood too quickly.

Brave, but Safe.

"Father, are generals brave men?" asked Johnny of his parent.

"Yes, my son, as a rule, I think they are," was the answer.

"Then why do artists always make pictures of 'em standing on a hill miles away, looking at the battle through an opera glass?"

NO HOPE.

(New York Sun.)

Colonel Henry W. Waterson is in town. He will sail for Europe tomorrow and expects to remain on the other side of the Atlantic for at least ten months. The result of the election has left Colonel Waterson in a very despondent mood.

"There is nothing to reorganize," he said. "The defeat last Tuesday was too complete to permit of hope even for a long time to come. I have read that Tom Watson is talking about bringing together all the differing elements of democracy, but the man who talks of carrying out such reorganizing plans in six months or a year is impractical. Let Tom formulate that's his business. But it will come to nothing."

"I can see neither hope nor future for the democratic party until something comes along to bust up the republican party. The democrats were in power for about half a century until the slavery question split them. The republican party is now so strongly entrenched that it cannot be dislodged except by a great split in the party itself or some great national convulsion like the civil war. The talk of possible democratic victory in 1908 is absurd."

"If wheat dropped to 40 cents a bushel and corn to 30 cents, if cholera broke out in the Philippines and yellow fever in Wall street, or if some great national disturbance or great natural upheaval which no one can foresee broke out there might be some chance for the democrats in four years from now. The protective system maintained by the republicans is as great an oligarchy as slavery, and some time in the future it will wreck the party, but it is likely to be years before that happens."

"The republicans have all the necessary resources to hold on to the position they have now. They are armed with Krag-Jorgensen, while the democrats have nothing but bows and arrows. The democrats have no money. I guess it was 'pull Dick, pull' devil up at their headquarters during the campaign, and now that it is all over I don't believe they have enough money left to buy a bottle of whiskey."

LILIES OF REALTY AND BEAUTY.

In a recent interview with Mrs. Lily Langtry, she very wisely said: "The fact that I believe in the superior force of mind over matter does not blind me to the fact that the body and every successful life is good health, that the key-stone to physical beauty is perfect physical health."

"A sick woman cannot be a beautiful woman, nor can she be anything but a failure in her career as a woman. To a great extent a woman's beauty is measured by her health. Her hair and skin, her complexion, her eyes and her smile, her voice and her figure, her very life, are all dependent upon her health. It is my working rule for youth, youthful spirit and youthful looks."

One great secret of youth and beauty for the young woman or the mother is the proper understanding of her womanly system and well-being. Every woman, young or old, should know herself and her physical make-up. A good way to arrive at this knowledge is to get a good doctor book, such for instance as "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," by R. V. Pierce, sending twenty-one cents in one-cent stamps for paper-bound volume, or thirty-one cents for cloth-bound copy, and addressing Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser" is a book that every woman should have. It is a book that will tell you everything you need to know about your health and your body. It is a book that will tell you how to keep your health and your body in the best of condition. It is a book that will tell you how to make the most of your health and your body. ## SEED CORN.

A Farmer Should Select and Develop Corn for His Own Locality.

No person can grow as good seed for the farmer as he can grow himself. And certainly when he finds it necessary to purchase seed he should not have to go far from home. People say seed "runs out." They say a change of seed is necessary; they say that they must bring in new varieties from a long distance in order to increase the vigor. A scientist and practical farmer, Professor Andrew M. Soule of the University of Tennessee, affirms that all these things are untrue. Seeds, he says, run out because they do not receive the care and attention on the average farm that the originator gave them in their process of development.

Corn has been grown on the same farm and on the same land for years and years and has gradually improved throughout the whole period. Notable examples of this are found in the case of Boun County White, developed by Mr. Wiley of Thornton, Ind., and Early Learning, developed by J. S. Learning of Wilmington, O. These varieties, through intelligent selection, have become two of the standard varieties of the great corn belt.

Professor Soule recommends the farmer to produce his own seed corn because it is a needless expense to purchase fresh seed every year, and when once he obtains a variety adapted to his soil and climatic conditions it will give a larger yield and prove more satisfactory if he selects it so as to keep the type uniform and the quality and yield up to a certain standard.

Probably it is more important that the farmer produce his own corn seed than the seed of almost any other crop because the plant is so susceptible to climatic influences. Notice the difference between the characteristics of corn produced in the semitropical regions and of that growing in Minnesota. In the tropics the stalk is enormous. Under irrigation in Mexico of two from three to five large ears are obtained, and the stalks frequently reach a height of from eighteen to twenty feet. In Minnesota, on the other hand, the ears are small, and the stalk is not more than from five to eight feet high. A well established variety of river bottom corn, such as Huffman, when grown on uplands frequently proves unsatisfactory.

The studious farmer has noted that the variety of corn that does well on his neighbor's farm may not do as well on his. He has also observed that corn brought into Tennessee from Iowa or even from Ohio does not do well the first year, though it may do better the second and third. On the other hand, he has sometimes observed that corn brought from neighboring states and counties is an utter failure. All these things plainly teach us that the farmer should pay attention to the selection and development of corn for his own locality and for his specific needs.

Rye for Pasture.

Rye is a most excellent crop to be used as a pasture for hogs early in the spring. It is doubtful if any other crop makes its appearance so early, while it is comparatively hardy, thereby being but little danger of the crop winter killing.

The soil should be prepared very much in the same manner as for winter wheat. The plowing should be done early and the harrow freely used, so that the soil is made fine and true. The crop in the central part of the corn belt is usually sown about the 1st of September, although very satisfactory results will sometimes be obtained by seeding as late as the middle of October. This, however, allows a very small top, and the crop will hardly make such a strong growth early in the spring as if sown earlier. There may be top enough if it is sown early to furnish a little pasture in the fall, and this in itself is worth considering where hog pasture is scarce, says Iowa Homestead.

HANDLING CREAM.

Ed H. Webster, Dairy Expert, Tells How to Handle and to Deliver It.

Generally speaking, there is almost an entire lack of facilities for holding cream on the western farm. The majority of farms have wind pumps at or near the house. The pump furnishes an excellent location for an ideal milk house. On many farms visited the owner had built around the windmill tower or at one side of it a building, usually 6 by 8 feet, in which was placed a tank deep enough to set the milk cans and have water come up to their necks. All of the water pumped for stock and other purposes of the farm is run through the tank and then into the stock tank. This room of ten contains the separator and a work table. In fact, here is done the dairy work of the farm. With an arrangement of this kind and a good thermometer the cream should be kept without difficulty from forty-eight to seventy-two hours in the hottest weather. Such a building costs but little, and the convenience of having a place for the milk, cream and dairy utensils is in itself enough to justify the expense of building it. As a matter of fact, the farmer who is going to get the best price for his cream will have to provide himself with a place to keep it cool until it can be delivered to the station. Keep it just as cool as is possible without freezing up to the time it is delivered.

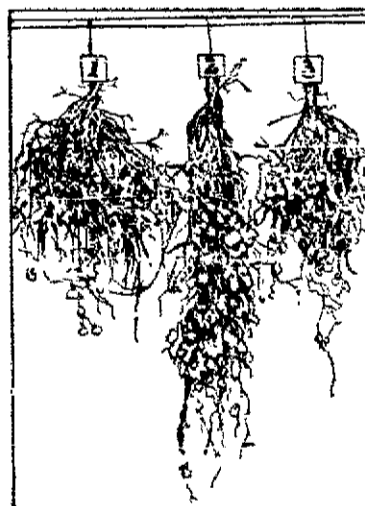

There are some points besides the immediate cooling and holding at a cool temperature that must be observed in order to insure good cream. The different skimmings of cream should never be mixed until both are of the same temperature. The cream when cooled down keeps fairly well, but if some warm cream should be mixed with it the temperature will be raised. At once the germ life becomes more active, and souring takes place very quickly. No vegetables or other produce having strong odors should be kept in the same room with the cream. It takes such odors very readily and retains them tenaciously. In fact, keep the milk room for milk and nothing else and, above all, have plenty of windows to admit sunshine when wanted and use plenty of "elbow grease" in keeping it sweet and clean.

In many instances all the good work done is entirely spoiled because the cream is not cared for in delivery. The writer has observed many thousand cans in process of delivery, and in nearly 99 per cent of them the work was done in such a manner as to damage the cream. For some reason, probably through lack of better information on the part of the person delivering the cream and also on the part of the man receiving it, the cream was handled as though no damage could come to it after it was taken away from the farm. It mattered not whether the heat of the summer's sun or the cold blast of the winter's storm was on, the can of cream was exposed to it all. Withdraw the lid of a can of cream that has been exposed to the heat for one or more hours, and the first whiff is a sour one. The cream will be found to be several degrees warmer than when taken from the water tank at the farm.

It is a simple thing to cover the cream can with a wet sack or blanket and throw over this a dry one, which will effectively stop the mischief. With this precaution the cream will arrive at the station as cool as when taken from the farm. The same precaution, except that the blanket should be kept dry, is a sure protection against freezing in winter.

Experience With Cowpeas.

Thirty-four varieties of cowpeas were planted in a Kansas field trial. The New Era variety gave the largest yield of gain, 11.67 bushels per acre. Only a few of the varieties matured seed, and as a grain producer the soy beans are preferred to cowpeas for growing in this state.

Cowpeas make a ranker vine growth and are usually to be preferred to soy beans for forage production, several of the better producing varieties yielding on an average 2.5 tons of dry fodder per acre. The Whippoorwill cowpeas, a medium early variety, is well known and most extensively grown in this state.

One Thing and Another.

No wonderfully has improved machinery transformed the primitive art of farming that the farmer may now be considered to a great extent an agricultural mechanic.

The 200 bushel an acre corn farmer has but one rule for the cultivation of the crop, and it is, never allow a crust to form after a rain, but cultivate shallow, level and often.

Cactus farming is an Arizona industry. The object is to supply the variety of kinds of cactuses, for which there is a demand by botanical gardens. Also the cactus is said to be used for medicinal purposes.

POISON IVY.

It May Be Known by Its Three Leaflets and White Berries.

Frequently a person is puzzled to know whether a vine with which he comes in contact is poison ivy or Virginia creeper. The poison ivy has three leaflets and white berries, while the creeper has five and purple berries. The only way to prevent a bad case of poisoning from the ivy is to begin treatment as soon as the itching sensation becomes apparent. If the case is allowed to continue until the pustules break the patient is pretty sure to suffer for a week or more. A good remedy is the extract of grindella, which if used in time by rubbing on the affected parts every five minutes will give relief. Sugar of lead salve is also a standard remedy.

If a person who has touched poison ivy will wash the exposed part thoroughly with soap as soon after as possible poisoning can generally be prevented. The poisonous principle in the ivy is a corrosive essential oil which is very volatile. It is not necessary to touch the ivy in order to be poisoned. Passing near it may be sufficient, and when ivy is burned the smoke is also poisonous.

Many people are not at all sensitive to poison ivy and can handle it without fear, while to others a mere breath of it is sufficient to cause troublesome eruptions. Poison oak and poison ivy are the same thing. The plant has a peculiar way of changing its habit of growth according to local conditions.—Pathfinder.

SUPERSTITIONS.

Things That Some People Imagine Are Signs of Bad Luck.

Some people otherwise sensible will draw back rather than walk under a ladder. Even straggled women hesitate to show their contempt of this superstition when they hear that it prevents the single from marrying for that year and to the married it betokens death. The Dutch hold that it was a sign that you would be hanged because of the important part which a ladder used formerly to play in the last act of the law. A Scotch tradition holds it lucky to wish when going under a ladder.

To miss the mouth in eating and drop one's victuals is a sign of approaching sickness. Every time one turns a loaf upside down a ship is wrecked. On this the Dutch say, "If a loaf lies topsy turvy it is not good." Scott in "The Tales of a Grandfather" says, "Never turn a loaf in the presence of a Montelth." Hazlitt in his "English Proverbs" quotes, "Are there sailors at the table that the loaf is turned the wrong side upward?" That ill fortune attended the spilling of salt is an idea arising from the belief of the ancients that salt was incorruptible. It was therefore made the symbol of friendship, and if it fell casually the ancients thought their friendship would not be of long duration. In Leonardo da Vinci's "Last Supper" the betrayer is represented in the act of spilling salt.

Traits of Apes.

It has been observed that if the tame dog is taken back to the wild state he loses his voice. These "sounding voices" are produced in the animal's throat in a way similar to human language, but are not "voices" proper nor "languages" proper, and yet they are full of psychological expression and reveal the animal's psychic states. If we tickle a chimpanzee in the armpit the touch produces a grin on the face similar to that of a man under like circumstances. He also emits laughter-like sounds. The same is the case with the orang outang. The gorilla knits the brow when angry, just like men. We often observe in apes a complete change in the facial muscles when something is going to happen, be it agreeable or disagreeable. It is so also with the child. In apes there is evidently the same connection between the facial muscles and vocal muscles as in man.

How a County Got Its Name.

Frenchtown, in Antelope county, Neb., received its name from the number of French settlers in the vicinity. The county itself received its name from a party of Platte county settlers. They were chasing a band of Indian cattle thieves across what is now Antelope county when they became so exhausted for lack of food that they could not go farther. At this critical time an antelope appeared in sight and was shot, thus possibly saving the lives of the hunters. One member of this party was in the legislature that named the territory, including the scene of this incident, and the county was named Antelope at his suggestion.—Nebraska State Journal.

His Convincing Manner.

"Do you—aw—believe in the—aw—theory of evolution, Miss Wise—that we all—aw—spring from apes, don't you know?"

The beautiful girl hesitated. "I never used to," she replied finally.

"Perhaps I—aw—could convince you," he suggested.

"You have already," she answered.—New York Press.

(Success Magazine.)

Some of our pension statistics are curious. For example, we learn that there are still on the rolls three pensioners of the Revolutionary war, which was brought to an end over 120 years ago. Of pensioners accredited to the war of 1812, there still remain 919, while of the Mexican war no fewer than 13,055 survive. Of those accredited to the Revolutionary war, one is a widow and two are daughters. The report shows that pension payments are made to people residing in every state and territory in the Union, and in almost every known state, Ohio leads in the amounts of pension money paid annually to its citizens, with Pennsylvania second, New York third and Illinois and Indiana following closely. At the date of the report there were 4,910 pensioners residing outside of the United States, and they drew $722,140.69 in the last fiscal year. Nearly half of this amount went to persons in Canada. Quarterly pension vouchers were sent besides to persons in Mexico, South America, every country in Europe, the Azores, the Barbados, China, the Comoro Isles, East and South Africa, Samoa, the Seychelles Islands, Siam and St. Martin. It shows that the pension bureau was a busy office last year. More than 268,000 cases were passed upon, and 153,060 certificates were issued. No fewer than 108,114 applications were rejected, of which $3,000 were thrown out on medical and 24,000 on legal grounds.

Yesterday marked the striking of a very fine well, on the Zion church property, six miles north-east of this city, which made 125 barrels of the covered fluid the first day following the shot. This prize is owned by J. A. and J. W. Glenn and proves that the number thirteen has nothing to do with luck. This well is in section 8 Jackson township, Allen county, and is old developed territory. In section 7 of the same township a thirty barrel producer was the capacity of The Surety Oil Co.'s No. 3 on B. Murays farm after a large shot had been set off. 4843 Misses' Fancy Blouse, 12 to 18 yrs.

To be made with or without the fitted lining.

Broad shoulders make the latest edict of fashion and are rendered exceptionally attractive in this very pretty blouse, which includes the shallow round yoke which also makes one of the latest and newest features. The model is made of tobacco brown velvet, with yoke and cuffs of ecru
lace and the trimming band of silk embroidered with little circles and stitched with beading silk. It can,
however, be reproduced in any seasonable material and is quite as well adapted to the odd waist as to the frock. The waist and sleeves are both gathered at their upper edges and joined to the band which closes with
the collar at the left shoulder seam.
The collar is one of the new ones, of the turn over sort, and can be slashed and worn with a tie, as illustrated,
or left plain as preferred.

The waist consists of the fitted lining, which is optional, fronts, back,
sleeves, yoke and trimming band.
When the lining is used the sleeves
are faced on indicated lines to form cuffs but when it is omitted cuffs of the required depth are made separate and joined to the lower edges of the sleeves. The waist is gathered at its lower edge, made to blouse slightly at back as well as front and is closed invisibly by means of buttons and loops.

The quantity of material required
for the medium size is 3 1/2 yards 21
inches wide, 3 1/2 yards 27 inches wide or 1 1/2 yards 44 inches wide, with 3/4 yards of all over lace for yoke and cuffs and 3/4 yards of silk for trimming band.

Driver on the same section, made a fine
pumper, rated at 10 barrels a day.
Over in Sandusky County in section 19 Sandusky township, Cuyler, Higgins and Sternburg's No. 9 on the E. Root farm produced after being shot 30 barrels in the first 24 hours.
The Rich Oil Co.'s finished and put to pumping their second well on Henry Muray's acreage and were reimbursed to the extent of 2 barrels the initial day. This is in section 27 the same township.

Up in Lucas Co. The Eastern Oil company in their number 7 on the J.
Barack received a 20 barrel pumper.
This is Oregon township developments
in section 8.

A duster was the out-come of a test drilled on A. Peders and Linman Ames farm in section 2, Jerusalem
township of the same county by H.
McDougl and others. It is understood they will further test this property.

In testing the F. W. Heminger 40 acre piece in section 6 Montgomery township Wood county, eight miles south-east of Bowling Green; the result was a 15 barrel pumper at the end of the first day. This well is owned by McKimsey and Patton.

One mile south of Portage the Paragon drilled a 25 barrel on M. Pra-bosc's farm. This is their seventh trial and pumped 2 barrels the first day.

Indiana.

One hundred barrels the first 24
hours was the gauge of the Ohio Oil Co.'s No. 5 in section 23 Washington township Grant county. The Jacob J.
Eger farm was the fortunate donor
of this well, and will stimulate the already extensive operations in Grant county. The same company in section 21 of this township got a 20 barrel pumper on Granville Bookers farm. Moran and others duplicated this on John A. King's property in section 23 after completing his No. 7.

Two wells drilled along the west line of the G. W. Coon farm in section 33, by the Ohio Oil Co. made 10 and 25
barrels respectively.

The Columbia Oil and Gas Co. received a very small pumper in the completion of No. 5 on the W. E. Glen farm in section 15 Jefferson township, making according to the gauge 5 barrels the first day. This company have completed three wells on this farm
this week, the others doing about 25
barrels.

In the Buckeye Field.

There were not as many wells completed in the Buckeye field as in the Hoosier territory, but it does not signify that operations are any more stagnant, as the drill is quite as active
here as in Indiana, with the exception of the deep-pay territory in Delaware and Randolph counties. With this dry weather, the coming week will bring with it many more wells. In Hancock county L. D. Larmade completed his No. 12 on the R. Derhodes farm in section 4 Portage township, making his richer to the extent of 25
barrels as the first days out-pump.

In Allen county the United States
Petroleum Co.'s No. 2 on the F. S.
Kieswetter in section 16 Marion township proved itself of being good for 20 barrels of the fluid.

The Metropolitan Oil, Gas and Coal Co. finished No. 3 on R. Harpster in section 3 Sugar Creek township making the first twenty four hours 25
barrels.

In section 1 Freedom township,
Wood county the Paragon Refining Co. got a small well on H. L. Sherman's farm making but a couple of inches the first day. Fitzgerald Smith and others pumped 10 barrels from
No. 8 the first day on the George Fitzgerald farm.

On the O. A. Diver farm the Foster-la Oil and Gas Co. completed No. 35
and increased their production a little, it making 10 barrels as a starter.
This location in section 31 Montgomery township.

Batson and Duster got a six barrel pumper as the result of a test on
J. P. Krabill's farm in section 24,
Portage township.

The Van Vleck Stowe Co. drew a fifteen barrel pumper in their first well on August Peters in section 7
Allen township, Ottawa county.

The Grant county held does not seem to be effected by the rush to the deep-pay territory around Parker and Selma, there being completed in this district twenty wells within the last week, nothing large but having the required staying qualities of a payer.
Thomas Kramer and Lord shot No. 4 Monday, starting the production for the first 24 hours with 50 barrels.
This well is located on Edgar C. Ralley in section 8 Mill township. The Tin Workers Oil Co.'s test on W. J. Thomas section 3 Mill township. The inital day. The Ohio Oil Co. drilled No.

4 in on the Frank Wise farm in section 7, it making a thirty five barrel pumper. Well number 4 on L. R.
Lewis is only reported good for a small pumper making 15 barrels. This well is the property of the Sullivan Oil Co. and known as No. 4. The Jones boro Mining Co. duplicated this with their No. 3 on E. Overmans farm in section 12. The Ohio Oil Co.'s No. 2 drilled on the Gilbert D. Jay in section 5 made only 10 barrels.

The Bolds Hardware Company of Van Buren, Ind., has entered the oil business and drill their own test on
D. Ganser's farm in section 16 Van Buren township, which resulted in a small pumper doing the first 24 hours only 10 barrels. D. T. Duke and others treated their second well to a large shot and flagged a 40 barrel,
on the E. B. Landess in section 17.
Ten barrels will class S. Y. Ramages
No. 13 on the Mary L. Korporat in section 16 and also the Acme Oil Co.'s
No. 14 on E. W. Greviston in section 19.

Over in Jefferson township the Huntington Light and Fuel company's second well located on George F. Slater's farm in section 27, pumped 25
barrels the first day. The Columbia Oil and Gas Co. added only 10 barrels to their production in drilling number 4
on W. E. Ginn in section 15. The 110
Oil Co. did likewise with their sixth venture in section 29 on Liberty Hamilton.

On George F. Slater's farm in the south-west corner of section 27 leased
by The Enterprise Transit Co.; their number 11 made 5 barrels and pumped off the first day.

In Center township the same county, the Sugar Creek Oil Co. finished their No. 10 on the C. E. Neal place and added $30.00 in oil value to their treasury the first 24 hours. Out of three other wells drilled by the Ohio
Co. I. D. Two of which were on the W. H. Pearson number 4 and 6 in section 11 and the other on James Hawkins farm, known as No. 9 in section 2. The production was five barrels to each well.

Down in Adams Co. the The Superior Oil Co. finished two wells, their number 8 and 9 in section 29 Blue Creek township, located on the J. K.
Pruden arm, No. 8 made 26 barrels
after pumping it the first day, and No.
9 resulted in being a dry one.

No. 3 on the D. Studabaker in section 5 put forth only 12 barrels as a starter. This well is the property of the Studabaker Oil Co.

The California Geysier Co. in testing J. Hockinberry's farm got a small geyser making only 15 barrels of crude. This location is in Jefferson township, section 6.

Old Blackford county handed Davis
Whipple and Eberling a good well making to their credit 40 barrels of the valuable fluid the first day on James Wolverson farm. This well is in section 11 Washington township,
and is in the best of territory.

Up in Wells Co. Preden Lauffer and others landed a good well in the completion of No. 7 on J. Lowery's property, making according to the gauge the first twenty-four hours a half of a century. This is in section 28 Chester township and has developed on all sides.

In section 36 Jackson township J.
P. Kyle has finished his test of the
E. T. Williams and has a 25 barrel,
Two dry holes are the result in Wabash township Adams county. One of these is owned by the Hudson Oil Co. being No. 2 on C. Burghelter in section 19 and the other unisusky firm is the Atlas Oil and Gas Co., whose well No. 5 on the P. A. Macklin in section 33 followed suit.

The Ohio Field.

Wood county has added a fine well
to its credit it being a 100 barrel well,
which without being shot, produced
that amount to the Ohio Oil company
the first twenty four hours. This well is located on the I. Whitacre in section 5 Bloom township; this is their number ten on this farm.

In Montgomery township the same company have finished their No. 12
on the Thos. Crowfoot in section 7, giving them 10 barrels of the crude.

PRAISE

For Lima Stock Farms by Gen Sherwood.

General Sherwood in a resume of horse affairs in Ohio, has the following to say about Lima men:

"One of the five horse towns in Ohio is the thriving city of Lima. The Lima Stock Farm, of which the well-known horseman and breeder, J. C.
Linneman, is proprietor, has as usual,
a lot of promising youngsters that are being developed. Norval 2:14 1/2, the premier stallion, now has 92
standard performers, having added
six new ones this year, four having reduced their records. Norval is strong and vigorous at his advanced age and serves a limited number of mares each year.

"Springdale Stock Farm, also located at Lima, O., the well-known attorney, D. J. Cable, being the proprietor.
At the head of this farm is the promising young sire, Frank Irvington 2:23 1/2
by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16 1/2, out of Nettie G. by Anteeo, grandam a producer by Venture. Frank Irvington is a promising sire, as the youngster owned at Springdale indicates. He has a number that are quite promising and these will be trained next year."

A STARTLING TEST.
To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of
No. McChopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure.
He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver trouble,
so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, indigestion, Constipation

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

There is one rational way to treat
nasal catarrh; the medicine is applied direct to the affected membrane. The remedy is Ely's Cream Balm. It restores the inflamed tissues to a healthy state without drying all the

THE WEATHER CLERK SCORED.

Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, was the subject at a dinner last winter of many jokes about the mistakes that the bureau was making just then in its predictions. He took it good naturedly, giving apt answers to all the chaffing
and scored in particular against a young physician "Professor," said
the doctor, "I'm glad of one thing—
you chaps will at least admit that you make mistakes." "Oh, as to that," responded Moore carelessly, "we must necessarily. Now, with the medical profession it's quite different. You can buy yours, you know."—Chicago

ATE HER HAIR.

Des Moines Cor N. W. York Press
Her stomach filled with hair she had eaten from her own tresses in her sleep. Stella Weston, 14 years old,
of No. 2204 School street, died yesterday. Not until a post-mortem was held today was it known what caused the girl such excruciating agony and baffled the skilled physicians who had treated her. They had given to her medicine for indigestion but their most heroic remedies had failed to remove the ball of hair from her stomach, and she died in frightful agony.

Miss Weston was a daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. Erastus J. Weston. Her winning ways and brightness as a pupil made for her many friends in the School district. The parents knew she had a childish habit of chewing the ends of her tresses in her sleep, but had no idea she was swallowing the hair or that it was the real cause of the breaking down of her health.

After the girl died the physicians obtained the consent of the parents to a post-mortem. When they examined the stomach, which all had agreed was the seat of the trouble,
they were astounded to discover
a ball of hair two inches in diameter.
The outer covering, which was composed of hair most recently eaten, was soft, but the interior of the ball had become as hard as bone. At first the physicians did not know what the foreign substance was, but the foremen soon revealed its composition
in their opinion the ball had been accumulating for years.
